A judge sentenced an Oklahoma man to four years in federal prison on a firearm charge — then minutes later performed a marriage ceremony to wed the new inmate and his longtime girlfriend. Larry Austin and Dustie Trojack obtained their marriage license Thursday, then Austin pleaded guilty to a firearm charge and was sentenced by Oklahoma County Judge Jerry Bass. Shortly afterward, Bass married the couple, who kissed before federal authorities whisked Austin away. (AP)

Chicago Teachers Still on Strike

Union delegates want more time to review proposed settlement

Chicago

The Chicago teachers union decided Sunday to continue its weeklong strike, extending an acrimonious standoff with Mayor Rahm Emanuel over teacher evaluations and job security provisions central to the debate over the future of public education across the United States.

Union delegates declined to formally vote on a proposed contract settlement worked out over the weekend with officials from the nation's third-largest school district. Schools will remain closed Monday.

Union president Karen Lewis said teachers want the opportunity to continue to discuss the offer that is on the table.

"Our members are not happy," Lewis said. "They want to know if there is anything more they can get." She said the union's delegates will meet again Tuesday, and the soonest classes are likely to resume is Wednesday.

"We felt more comfortable being able to take back what's on the table and let our constituents look at it and digest it," said Dean Refakes, a physical education teacher at Gompers Elementary School and a delegate. "We can have a much better deci-

Political Implications

The Chicago teachers strike carries political implications, too, raising the risk of a protracted labor battle in President Barack Obama's hometown at the height of the fall campaign, with a prominent Democratic mayor and Obama's former chief of staff, at left, squarely in the middle. Mayor Rahm Emanuel's forceful demands for reform had angered the teachers last year as the cash-strapped city began bargaining with a number of unions. (AP)

Backstory

The teachers strike, the first in Chicago in 25 years, canceled classes
Sept. 10 for 350,000 students who just returned from summer vacation and forced tens of thousands of parents to find alternatives for idle children, including many whose neighborhoods have been wracked by gang violence in recent months. The walkout was the first for a major American city in at least six years. It drew national attention because it posed a high-profile test for teachers unions, which have seen their political influence threatened by a growing reform movement. (AP) sion come Tuesday."

When the two sides met at the bargaining table, money was only part of the problem. With an average salary of $76,000, Chicago teachers are among the highest-paid in the nation. After weeks of talks, the district proposed a 16 percent raise over four years, including bumps for experience and education. But the evaluations and job security measures stirred the most intense debate.

The union said the evaluation system was unfair because it relied too heavily on test scores and did not take into account outside factors that affect student performance such as poverty, violence and homelessness.

U.S. Deeply Divided on Election

Polls show wide gap between preference and prediction

Washington

National polling suggests that the American public is deeply divided about whom it wants to be the next president of the United States.

In a Washington Post-ABC News survey released last week President Barack Obama led Mitt Romney by 49 percent to 48 percent among likely voters. A New York Times-CBS News poll released around the same time put Obama at 49 percent to Romney's 46 percent among those most likely to vote.

But if likely voters are almost evenly split on who should occupy 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. in January, they are far less indecisive on who they think will be the next president.

Fifty-nine percent of registered voters in a Post-ABC poll in late August said they thought Obama would win, while 34 percent chose Romney, even as the head-to-head vote in that poll stood at 47 percent for Romney and 46 percent for Obama among registered voters.

Polls suggest most Americans think President Barack Obama will beat Mitt Romney.

The story was the same in early July when a Post-ABC poll found the two candidates tied at 47 percent among registered voters in the horse race but Obama leading by 58 percent to 34 percent on the question of who will win.

What explains the wide gap between the candidate voters want to win and the one they think will win? One theory is that people tend to struggle to imagine someone other than the current occupant of the White House as the president until he, well, isn't anymore — even if they don't like him or don't plan to vote for him.

But large numbers of people saying your candidate is going to win is not a good thing, said Ed Goeas, a longtime Republican pollster.

"It allows other things in a person's busy day to become more important because their candidate is going to win anyway," he said. CHRIS CILLIZZA (THE WASHINGTON POST)

CDC: U.S. Kids Eat Too Much Salt

Chicago

American children eat as much salt as adults — about 1,000 milligrams too much, or the same amount as in just one Big Mac. Extra salt is linked with higher blood pressure, even in kids, but government research says those who are overweight and obese may be most vulnerable to its effects.

The new findings from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention were to be published online Monday in the journal Pediatrics.

Previous research has shown similar results in adults, but studies on salt, weight and blood pressure are scarce in children.

The CDC researchers looked at data on 6,200 kids aged 8 to 18 involved in 2003-08 national health surveys. The children were asked twice over several days to detail all foods they'd eaten the previous day; the researchers calculated salt intake from their answers.

CDC researcher Quanhe Yang says it's unclear why heavier kids would be more sensitive to salt, but it could be because of obesity-related hormone changes.

Mideast Leaders Assess Damage

As protests continue, some fear of strain put on U.S. relations

Cairo

After days of anti-American turmoil in the Muslim world, governments on Sunday looked ahead to a week of trying to make an uneasy compromise between the anger of their citizens and their desire to convince the United States of their goodwill.

But U.S. diplomatic outposts remained under threat. In Pakistan, at least one protester was killed and 18 were injured Sunday as hundreds of people broke through a barricade in a march to the U.S. Consulate in Karachi, and thousands more rallied in Lahore, where American flags were burned, the Associated Press reported.

In Cairo, the U.S. Embassy returned to full staffing Sunday, a spokesman said, for the first time since Tuesday protests against an anti-Islam movie made in the United States sparked turmoil across the Muslim world. But the American diplomatic presence remained reduced elsewhere in the region, meaning there were fewer routes to repair relations even as they came under the most strain since the wave of democratic change caused last year by the Arab Spring.

In Tunisia, where additional security has been deployed to protect the embassy after Friday's attack, the Saturday decision to withdraw nonessential U.S. embassy staff from the mission there appeared to jar Tunisian officials, who have marketed the country as a model of democratic transformation after the peaceful toppling last year of longtime president Zine El Abidine Ben Ali.

Hedi Ben Abbas, a foreign affairs minister, said Friday's demonstration was a failure for Tunisia, and he said the unrest was triggered by religious fervor, not anti-American anger.

"The United States should trust us again," he said.

But Hezbollah leader Sheik Hassan Nasrallah called for continued protests at U.S. embassies to "express our anger" and to urge leaders to act. (THE WASHINGTON POST/AP)

'Insider' Attack Kills 4 U.S. Troops

Surge in assaults highlights failings in Afghan security

Kabul, Afghanistan

Afghan police killed four American soldiers coming to their aid after a checkpoint attack Sunday, the third "insider" assault by government forces or insurgents disguised in military uniforms in as many days.

The escalating violence has strained the military partnership between Kabul and NATO as the U.S. begins to withdraw thousands of troops sent three years ago to route the Taliban from southern strongholds.

The surge in insider attacks is a sign of how security has deteriorated as NATO prepares its military exit from Afghanistan by the end of 2014. The U.S. is days away from completing the first stage of its own drawdown, withdrawing 51 33,000 troops who were part of the surge three years ago. About 68,000 U.S. troops will remain at the end of September.

NATO and U.S. forces are working with the Afghan government to tighten vetting procedures and increase security between the forces, but nothing has so far been able to stem the attacks on troops, which NATO frequently asserts are standing "shoulder by shoulder."

The latest deaths make at least 247 American troops killed in Afghanistan this year. Nearly 2,000 American troops have been killed in the conflict since the 2001 invasion.

already pegged for development, the BID's new president, Robin-Eve Jasper, decided to push for a network of smaller places for public gatherings, dog walks, relaxation, playgrounds and limited recreation.

Now Mayor Vincent Gray, a Democrat, has endorsed that vision with $490,000 in planning dollars. In a statement issued by the BID, the mayor said he wanted the District to be the greenest major city in the country.

al amenities, is an important step in achieving that vision," he said.

In an interview, Jasper said the money would set the stage for a network of walking trails and small, urban parks serving a variety of functions throughout the neighborhood.

"Basically what we came up with was a plan that addressed all of those different needs in places in the neighborhood but not all in one place," she said.

Jasper said it was critical to begin the process, because with all the development happening in NoMa, private landowners needed to know where and how parks would be located to make sure they could build projects that interact with — and sometimes set aside land for — public space.

Care to Share

The first automobile accident in U.S. history is said to have been recorded in New York in 1896 when a car collided with a bicycle. There were fewer bicycles then — the invention was about 25 years old — and a heckuva lot fewer cars, so it's hard to imagine how the two managed to collide. But it didn't end there. There are now 250 million registered vehicles on U.S. roads. Americans are buying almost 16 million bikes a year. About 700 people a year die in bike accidents, and 45,000 are injured. But riders and drivers can coexist in peace. Here are some tips on how to do so. ASHLEY HALSEY HI (THE WASHINGTON POST)

6 Things Every Driver Should Know About Sharing the Road with Cyclists:

- ➤ You look for pedestrians when you're making a turn, right? Why not take a couple of seconds longer to look for a cyclist? The rider has the right of way if he's going straight and you're turning right.
- The bike lane serves a purpose, and it isn't for you to park in, even for "just a couple of seconds."

  When you do that, cyclists have to swerve into traffic lanes—lanes in which drivers don't expect them because there is, after all, a bike lane.
- ▶ You may never feel more powerful than when your foot's on the gas pedal, but if you are at fault in a collision with a cyclist even if you just "brush" against the biker you might lose your driver's license for a while and your private auto insurance forever. You could be looking at criminal charges, too.
  - Riders go through stop signs. It's illegal, and it can be annoying if they do it cavalierly. Other cyclists slow down, look both ways and then roll through. Usually it's because their shoes are mechanically attached to the pedal. Yes, they can clip out, but they opt not to.
- Don't count on a cyclist to hear your car coming from behind. A rider is hearing a lot more noise than you are inside the car with the windows rolled up. And some foolishly listen to music while they ride. But don't lean on the horn.
  - From the row of parked cars as you're trying to navigate a narrow street? Cyclists call it being "doored." If someone swings open the door of a parked car, the cyclist who is too close goes down.

6 Things Every Cyclist Should Know About Sharing the Road with Drivers:

- ▶ Don't be a cowboy on a bike. If you're an end-of-the-alphabet generation maybe not X, but Y or Z you might feel immortal and free to ride with the panache of a bike messenger. But inconsistent risk-taking as you zip through traffic puts more-mortal riders at peril, because it makes drivers jittery and annoyed whenever they see someone on two wheels.
- Music may be your life, it may be the grease with which you glide from day to day, but it also may be your death when those earbuds drown out that delivery van. No, listening to music with one ear and for traffic with the other is not acceptable.
- ▶ Don't shoot up the gutter side when cars are stopped at a light. Most cyclists do it, but it's dumb and dangerous. It also doesn't save a whole bunch of time. If the light changes and traffic starts moving, the driver you've just pulled next to may be oblivious and cut you off with a turn.
- ▶ Don't cut up between two rows of cars stopped at a light. You can end up in a heap of trouble if traffic suddenly starts rolling at 40 mph. The seconds you save aren't worth the risk.
- ▶ Take the lane when you stop at a light or for a stop sign. Hugging the curb invites a car or truck to snug up against you, and that can be trouble when you both roll forward. The right hook when a driver turns right and hits a cyclist who is going straight is one of the most common crashes. Take charge of the right lane and pull off to the side after the light turns green.

TV personalities share advice about spending, saving

Personal Finance

It turns out there aren't many money-saving shows on television. So Deal Hunter compiled a short list of TV shows that touch on money-saving tips, investing or ways to do things yourself to save big, and you can watch most of these online.

"My Shopping Addiction": One of the few new television shows about spending, this docu-series follows young people with shopping or spending addictions. The show highlights how quickly young people can fall into debt because of dangerous addictions to spending. It premieres Oct. 15 on Oxygen.

"Market Warriors": This show follows professional antiquers who go to flea markets across the country looking for treasures they can then sell.

Miller Gaffney of "Market Warriors" looks for treasures at flea markets.

Watch to learn how to bargain, buy and resell your market finds. It airs Mondays on PBS.

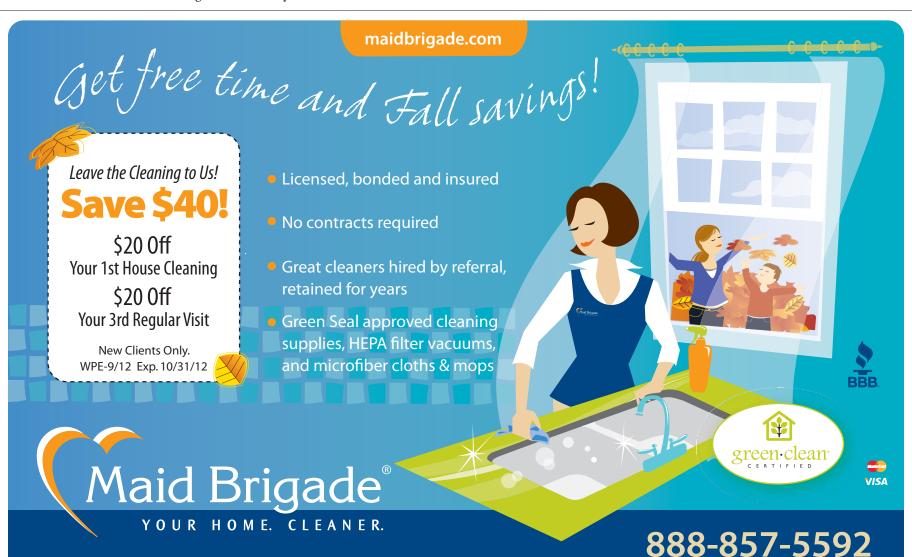

"Ten Dollar Dinners": Melissa d'Arabian's show is a good place for the novice cook to start. She focuses on cheap and easy dinners that can feed a family, and she takes the pledge literally: four people, $10. The show airs weekdays on the Food Network.

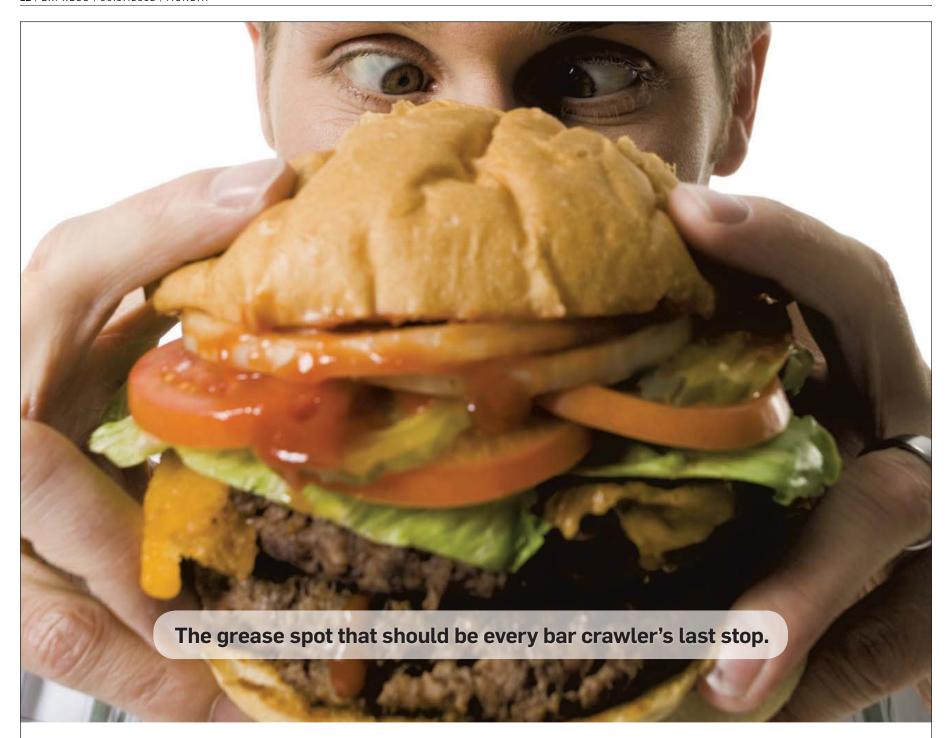

"I Found the Gown": Women who score great deals on designer gowns at Vows Bridal Outlet outside of Boston prove you don't have to break your budget for your big day. New episodes are on TLC through early fall.

CNBC: If you're not watching the markets, you should be. No one ever made money by ignoring international finance, so why not learn something about investing? You'll learn about finance by watching talking heads on CNBC, even if you just have it on as background noise during the day. And even if you're not investing, Jim Kramer's "Mad Money" is an entertaining way to learn financial terms. KATHERINE BOYLE (THE WASHINGTON POST)

As lockout threatens season, NHL is back in familiar territory

Pro Hockey

The NHL is getting pretty good at this: For the third time in less than 20 years, the league has locked out its players. The action came after Saturday's 11:59 p.m. deadline passed without a new collective bargaining agreement in place.

The lockout has prompted speculation that a delayed 2012-13 hockey season could begin on Thanksgiving or with the league's annual Winter Classic on New Year's Day. Whatever the case, training camp, which was set to begin throughout the league Friday, will be the first casualty of the work stoppage.

"This is a time of year for all attention to be focused on the ice, not on a meeting room," the NHL said in a statement Sunday. "The league, the clubs and the players all have a stake in resolving our bargaining issues appropriately and getting the puck dropped as soon as possible. We owe it to each other, to the game and, most of all, to the fans."

Backstory

For the third time in less than two years, a professional sports league is ensnared in a work stoppage after the National Hockey League locked out its players after Saturday's midnight deadline. A look at other sports leagues:

National Basketball Association

SIGNED LABOR AGREEMENT IN 2011 FOR 10 YEARS The last lockout ran from July 1 to Dec. 8, 2011, and wiped out training camps and nine weeks of the regular season. Teams' schedules were reduced from 82 to 66 games.

National Football League

SIGNED LABOR AGREEMENT IN 2011 FOR 10 YEARS The last lockout ran from March 11 to July 25, 2011, and wiped out the full free-agent signing period, organized team activities, training camps and the Hall of Fame game. The new agreement was put in place in time for a modified signing period, shortened camps and a full season.

eague Major League Baseball

SIGNED LABOR AGREEMENT IN 2011 FOR FIVE YEARS The last lockout ran from Aug. 12, 1994, to April 2, 1995, and wiped out the remainder of the 1994 regular season and all of the postseason. The World Series was canceled for the first time since 1904. All told, 948 games were lost. (AP)

The core issue, as always, is money — how to split a $3.3 billion pot of revenue. The owners want to decrease the percentage that goes to players, while the union wants a guarantee that players annually get at least the $1.8 billion in salaries paid out last season.

The lockout also marks the fourth shutdown for the NHL since 1992, including a yearlong dispute that forced the cancellation of the entire 2004-05 season when the league successfully held out for a salary cap.

With training camp gone, next in line for cancellation are preseason games (which were set to start next week) and the beginning of the regular season Oct. 11 (the Capitals were scheduled to open their season the following day).

With the chance for a timely start to the NHL season all but lost, some Capitals will scatter the globe. Alex Ovechkin said he would play in Russia's Kontinental Hockey League, while others, such as Nicklas Backstrom, Marcus Johansson and Michal Neuvirth, will likely join him in Europe.

Meanwhile, coach Adam Oates said he is frustrated that his first season behind the bench will be delayed. "Obviously, I want to start coaching," he said Friday.

That could be a while. When asked Friday if the players would sacrifice an entire season to get the deal they want, Brooks Laich didn't downplay the notion.

"If that's what it means," Laich said. "We believe in our cause and our leadership, and I believe we are more unified this time and ready for a fight." ADAM VINGAN (FOR EXPRESS)

Vick Rallies the Eagles Past the Ravens

Pro Football

Michael Vick and the Philadelphia Eagles followed a similar script for another comeback win.

Vick scored on a 1-yard TD run with 1:55 left, helping the Philadelphia Eagles overcome a slew of turnovers to beat the Baltimore Ravens 24-23 on Sunday.

Rookie kicker Justin Tucker made field goals of 56, 51 and 48 yards for the Ravens, but Joe Flacco couldn't get Baltimore (1-1) in his range in the final minute. Flacco overthrew Ray Rice on fourthand-1 from the Ravens 46, and the Demetress Bell lifts Michael Vick after the quarterback ran for a touchdown Sunday.

Eagles ran out the clock.

Vick threw four interceptions at Cleveland last week but rallied the Eagles (2-0) to a 17-16 win. He did it again, though the replacement officials almost made a costly mistake.

Down 23-17, the Eagles started at their 20 with 4:43 left. Vick threw passes of 24 and 13 yards to Brent Celek. A 19-yard pass to Clay Harbor coupled with a roughing-the-passer penalty put the ball at the 3.

Vick then threw incomplete as he was being hit by Haloti Ngata, but the play was ruled a fumble. It was recovered by the Ravens, but replay overturned the call and Vick scored on the next play.

The Eagles committed three turnovers in the red zone in the first half and lost two starting offensive linemen in the second. Vick finished 23 of 32 for 371 yards with one touchdown and two interceptions. Celek had eight catches for 157 yards and DeSean Jackson had seven receptions for 114 yards. (AP)

Nicks hauled in 10 catches for 199 yards as part of Eli Manning's huge day (see numbers below). Fellow receiver Victor Cruz set personal bests with 11 catches and 179 yards. Only the 1951 Rams had a 500-yard passer and two 150-yard receivers in the same game until New York on Sunday.

NFL Sidelines Replacement Ref

Pro Football

The NFL on Sunday removed a replacement official from the New Orleans-Carolina game because it discovered he's a Saints fan.

Side judge Brian Stropolo was replaced by an alternate, Tim Keese. The NFL made the decision Sunday morning just hours before kickoff.

The league will look further into the matter. It received several phone calls and emails about Stropolo, who is from New Orleans and posted several photos of himself in Saints gear tailgating at a preseason game on his Facebook page.

Stropolo's Facebook page has since been taken down. Stropolo worked the Week 1 NFL opener, a nationally televised game between the Dallas Cowboys and the defending Super Bowl champion New York Giants.

ESPN was first to report the news. (AP)

Injuries

Jeremy Maclin, WR, Eagles Maclin was carted off the field with a hip pointer in the second half.

 Aaron Hernandez, TE, Patriots An ankle injury suffered Sunday could force the tight end to miss up to six weeks.

Financial Success Begins at Signal Financial FCU!

Signal Financial Federal Credit Union — It's a name that symbolizes our commitment to connect you with great service, outstanding rates, convenience, accessibility and forward-thinking planning for 65 years.

Since the beginning of the credit union movement, credit unions have positioned themselves as educational institutions as well as financial cooperatives. We believe that it is our job to teach sound financial management skills, which are a necessary requirement to be successful in life. To that end, everything we do reflects a desire to partner with our members to help them achieve lifelong financial success. From early childhood money lessons ... to the teen years, when our young members have some money and need guidance . . . all the way to the adult years, credit unions promote the importance of saving, the wise use of credit, the value of good financial planning skills, and the habit of seeking financial direction from their credit union.

We stay in touch with our members through educational newsletters, which typically include helpful tips for saving and spending wisely, using credit cards carefully, and how to get the most out of credit union membership. We periodically offer free seminars on many worthwhile topics, including retirement planning, buying a new car, or finding the right mortgage for YOU.

In today's economy, it's so important for consumers to have a personal relationship with their financial institutions. At Signal Financial, we partner with you to help you make ends meet – thru debt consolidation loans, refinancing autos and homes, and pointing you to the right people to make a difference! We offer the personal touch that is so lacking in other institutions.

Now more than ever, consumers are looking for a better financial alternative: One that provides safety for their money, and good value in the form of low loan rates and minimal service fees. Credit unions are all about YOU – your hopes, your dreams and your financial goals. And we want to be with you every step of the way!

Signal Financial FCU is headquartered in Kensington, Maryland. With assets of $308 Million and nearly 30,000 members, it operates nine full-service branch offices in the District of Columbia, Maryland and Virginia. Membership is open to select employer groups in the area, as well as individuals who live, work, worship or attend school in Washington, DC and certain areas of Prince Georges County, Maryland (inside the beltway). Individuals may also join the credit union through our affiliation with several associations.

Critics question the way the TLC series depicts Southern life

Television

"Here Comes Honey Boo Boo" has been a ratings winner in recent weeks, capitalizing on redneck stereotypes and the oversize personality of a 6-year-old beauty pageant regular. But some who live nearby are concerned about the way their quiet pocket of Georgia is being portrayed on the TLC series.

The show centers on Alana "Honey Boo Boo" Thompson; her mother, June Shannon; and their family. The round-cheeked second-grader, who turned 7 last month, has a penchant for outrageous catchphrases — "A dolla makes me holla!" and "You better redneckognize!" — that have gone viral.

As the show attracts healthy audiences for a TLC series — 2 to 3 million weekly — it also has drawn strong reactions. Some say it exploits and mocks small-town people and perpetuates offensive stereotypes. Others criticize the parenting. Still others insist the series shows a loving family that doesn't let outside opinions bother them.

"This is who she is," Shannon said of her daughter. "This is her everyday life. She's got her own little personality, especially like when the cameras come on and when she's got attention."

Honey's Home

The tiny city of McIntyre, Ga., is nestled in a rural county that is a major exporter of kaolin, a chalky clay used in cosmetics, medicines,

converters for vehicles and heat shields on space shuttles. The city's population is around 650, and nearly 40 percent of the families had an income that put them below the poverty level, according to 2010 census numbers. Main Street stretches for about three blocks and features a small handful of businesses. (AP)

Wilkinson County Chamber of Commerce President Jonathan Jackson feels the show has portrayed the family's hometown, McIntyre, Ga., unfairly, choosing to fixate on shots of junk cars, garbage dumps and stray animals. "You can't very well ask and expect a television network to possess tact and taste — unless it makes them a dollar," he said.

Among the more than two dozen locals approached by AP, the most common reaction to the series was that, for better or worse, it has "put McIntyre on the map." Many said they enjoy the show, though most didn't think it represents the way most people in the area live.

"It bothers me a little that people might think that that's what everyone here is like," said Anita McGahee, who owns a flower and gift shop near the family's home. "It's like we all don't have any manners."

Executive producer Lauren Lexton rejects accusations that the show is exploiting the family or playing on stereotypes. The show has been so popular, she said, because the family members clearly love one another and strike a chord with the audience.

The show's one-hour season finale airs Sept. 26, and TLC won't yet say if it's doing a second season.

"Life is all about experiences," Shannon said, "and this is one of the experiences on the journey of life, and if it continues, fine, and if it doesn't, then we move on to be the same people we were before the show even started."

Bill Murray still loves comedy — he just needs the right role

Film

Bill Murray, an actor famous for his elusiveness, surprised journalists and movie buffs when he showed up at the Toronto International Film Festival for the premiere of "Hyde Park on the Hudson," in which he portrays Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Murray may not seem like the obvious choice to play Roosevelt. But director Roger Michell insists that Murray was his first choice to play the Depression-era president in the movie, largely because of the enormous goodwill Murray has with the audience.

"The only actor I could see making the film work was Bill," Michell said. "Because there's something forgivable about Bill. There's something mischievous about Bill. There's something ineffably charming about Bill."

In an interview just before "Hyde Park on the Hudson" made its gala debut, Murray admitted that he saw Michell's point in casting him.

"When people see me, it's amazing they light up. [It's] like, hey, that guy made me laugh; he's OK."

"I remember someone saying to me a long time ago, 'Bill there's a lot of goodwill out there for you.' And that was when I was a young man," Murray said. "I thought, 'Wow, that's an unusual thing for someone to say to a young person.' And I realized back then it was especially for the comedies. People really appreciate comedies. They admire the drama, but they love the comedy. When people see me, it's amazing — they light up. [It's] like, hey, that guy made me

Bill Murray says he won't make another "Ghostbusters," but at the Toronto International Film Festival last week, he walked the red carpet with the marshmallow man.

laugh; he's OK."

Even though Murray has been shooting down rumors of appearing in "Ghostbusters III," having earned a new reputation over the past decade as a serious dramatic actor, he said he wants to return to comedy one day. It just has to be the right one, "a comedy that really has just bells and whistles and fireworks and everything."

Murray would also like to try his hand at the Shakespeare comedies. "I'd really like to kill one of those," he said. "If they ever put some funny people in those things, boy, they'd be funny."

Beards And the Blues

Album Review

With its distortion-heavy slabs of gritty blues-rock and title en espanol, ZZ Top's first full-length album in nearly a decade could easily fit in the band's catalog somewhere before 1983, when "Eliminator" boldly embraced synthesizers and made the "little ol' band from Texas" unlikely MTV personalities.

To help evoke its less-polished '70s heyday for "La Futura," the band enlisted producer Rick Rubin, who has a history of reorienting artists who have lost their way.

La Futura ZZ Top

"La Futura" is a back-to-basics set of swaggering rock jams ("Chartreuse," "Big Shiny Nine") and barroom blues shuffles ("Heartache in Blue") delivered as always with plenty of the Texans' trademark humor and double entendre.

Like all worthy ZZ Top records, it's Billy Gibbons' signature guitar sound that bolsters "La Futura" and makes it a welcome return to form.

When the Lights Go Out

The new 'Revolution' is set in a mysterious future with no power

Fall Premieres

The search for the new "Lost" continues with "Revolution." Set 15 years after a mysterious and permanent power blackout, "Revolution" is both epic in scope and laughable in execution — often at the same time.

"Revolution" uses extensive special effects to depict a ruined world not unlike the old History Channel series "Life After People." Nineteenth-century villages, complete with small farms and pens for livestock, sprout up outside once-posh gated communities. Government, for what it's worth, has been reduced to warlordism.

Weapons and ammo are in short supply. Instead, everybody has learned how to craft pre-industrial weapons, such as crossbows.

"Revolution" is dominated by

spunky teens, most notably Charlie Matheson (Tracy Spiridakos) and her brother, Danny (Graham Rogers). When the asthmatic Danny falls into the hands of bad guys, Charlie makes for Chicago in search of her near-mythical Uncle Miles (Billy Burke), who resides in a decadent Windy City saloon.

If Charlie is the heart of the show, Miles provides the martial arts derring-do, fighting off bad guys with a balletic flair that recalls both Errol Flynn and Bruce Lee.

At its heart, "Revolution" is a mystery. Who turned out the lights? Why? Does anybody have the power to turn them back on? Unfortunately, some of its mystery is shrouded in magic. There's a lot of preposterous nonsense about "Revolution," but the show really begins to fall apart when charmed amulets show up. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNIVERSAL UCLICK)

Best Bets

Bones Brennan (Emily Deschanel, right) finds herself on the wrong end of a murder case in the season premiere: She's accused of doing the deed. As she hides from the FBI with help from her dad, Booth (David Boreanaz) and the team try to clear her name.

CMA Music Festival: Country's Night to Rock The Band Perry's Kimberly Perry and songwriter Luke Bryan host this threehour special featuring performances by Jason Aldean, Faith Hill, Alan Jackson, Miranda Lambert, Brad Paisley, Carrie Underwood and more.

The Real Housewives of New York City When LuAnn brings Jacques along to a dinner party with Ramona and Sonja, the two women wonder if she's told him about what happened in St. Barths.

Major Crimes In the wake of a deadly shooting in gang territory, Raydor (Mary McDonnell, left) makes a bold decision that puts Sykes' safety and her own career at risk. Meanwhile, Rusty makes it clear that he's not interested in meeting his biological father. (TRIBUNE MEDIA)

Fall Premieres

Made Medical

On "The Mob Doctor" (Fox, 9 p.m.), Jordana Spiro (above. formerly of "My Boys") proves she can handle drama as Grace Devlin, a surgeon at a Chicago hospital who is bogged down by a debt she owes to a mobster. To protect her brother, she's agreed to act as a sawbones to any mob member who needs medical care. It's "Grey's Anatomy" meets "The Sopranos." (TM)

Elvis Colbert, Daissan Ortiz

Elvis, 32, works for the FDA and is a concert promoter with LivSuite. Daissan, 28, is a financial reporting supervisor at NPR. They live in Bowie, Md.

THE MAIN EVENT: They will wed Oct. 6 at a Baptist church in Shaw, with a reception in Alexandria.

HOW THEY MET: She asked her friend to find her a single guy to go to a sorority event with. The friend set her up with Flyis.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS: "He was handsome and seemed more mature and 'put together' than anyone I had been on a date with before." "I was surprised by how great of a person Daissan seemed. I even asked her, 'So how come you are still single?'" FIRST DATE: Daissan and Elvis, plus the friend and her boyfriend, did a double date at Tryst.

HOW HE PROPOSED: After secretly flying to Ohio and back to ask her parents for permission, he popped the question just as she sat down for lunch. Then he got local D.C. artist Kenny Wesley to serenade her at work.

MOST STUPID FIGHT: When she insisted that her "faded and girly" lkea bedsheets went on their bed.
MAKING IT UNIQUE: They're giving out buckeyes and bourbon to celebrate their home states of Ohio (Daissan) and Kentucky (Elvis).

Yolanda Anderson, Daryl Brunson

Yolanda, 40, works for the APA. Daryl, 42, drives a MetroBus. They live in Capitol Heights. Md.

THE MAIN EVENT: They're marrying Sept. 22 at a private residence. HOW THEY MET: In church. FIRST IMPRESSIONS: "I wanted to beat her at this board game, and I thought she was competitive." FIRST DATE: Paddleboating on the Potomac and exploring the Mall. FIRST KISS: In their more than yearlong courtship, they haven't yet kissed. "Smooches will be reserved for our wedding day," Yolanda says. HOW HE PROPOSED: With a tux, a dozen roses, a friend serenading her and his two teenage daughters welcoming her into the family. WHEN SHE KNEW: After she had to give a stressful presentation at work, she walked to her car to find Daryl there with food, balloons and a card celebrating her success.

Robert Fox, Ellen Mueller

Rob, 28, is a policy analyst at the EPA. Ellen, 28, is a graduate student studying microbiology. They live in D.C.

THE MAIN EVENT: Oct. 13 in Woodbury, Minn.

HOW THEY MET: eharmony.com. FIRST DATE: Fado's Irish Pub in Chinatown. "I had accidentally left my ID in my car, so I had to sweet-talk my way into the bar. I didn't want him to think I was being a major flirt (with other men!) on our first date."

FIRST KISS: In the basement of her house, while they were watching Disney's "Hercules."

HOW HE PROPOSED: Midway through a trip to Ireland. He gave her a ring that had belonged to his great-great-grandmother.

PET NAMES: She is "Crow," "like from the 'Scrubs' episode where Dr.

Kelso says 'Women are like crows; they like shiny things,'" Rob says. "This is because of how much she liked looking at the sparkle on her ring after we got engaged."

WHEN SHE KNEW: A few months in, when they were running errands. "Rob, in an effort to entertain himself, was dancing in the aisles."

MAKING IT UNIQUE: "There may or may not be a 'Thriller' dance by the wedding party," Rob says.

BIO

By Invitation Only If you'd like to see your wedding or commitment ceremony in B.I.O., send your favorite informal photograph (wacky is fine, but please don't send a formal engagement shot), plus your names and ceremony date to weddings@readexpress.com. Please contact us at least one month before your wedding. We'll get back to you with questions.

Improve depressive symptoms faster?

Effective medications for treating depression can take weeks or months to achieve their full effects.

NIH RESEARCH

(unipolar or bipolar) to enroll in a research study involving an experimental drug when compared to placebo. The study seeks to better understand and evaluate the mechanisms in the brain that are related to rapid antidepressant improvement.

NIH researchers seek depressed persons ages 18-65

This is a 6-to 8-week outpatient and inpatient research study. Research is conducted at the NIH Clinical Center in Bethesda, Maryland. Understanding how the rapid reduction of symptoms works may help us design better antidepressants.

Horoscope

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may find the task before you rather daunting, but take care you don't isolate yourself as a result. Communication can surely help!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You'll want to start slowly and build up a head of steam steadily until you reach the pace that is most satisfying to you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Your prospects are improving — and they were never bad to begin with! Now is the time to put your money where your mouth is.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

A conservative approach may be most comfortable to you, but without taking any kind of risk you will score no measurable gains.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) What you are trying to do today may require an outsider's perspective to see what is really going on. Be open to change.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You're likely to receive input from someone who doesn't really understand your motives or intentions. Don't become defensive, however.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You can put yourself in a good position today, with high expectations. What comes your way eventually should satisfy many personal needs.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You claim to be doing something for someone else, when in fact you will surely be the biggest beneficiary of your own efforts.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You can teach those around you a great deal today — not by showing them what to do, but rather how to behave in a professional situation.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There is a time for talking and a time for listening, and rarely is there any gray area in this regard. Today, it's time to listen!

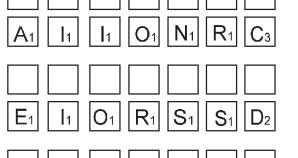

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You may want to change your game plan before the day is out, but use caution! Someone who did just that recently underwent severe hardship.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may want to reach out to someone you know only casually in the attempt to begin building a more meaningful relationship.

Finally, Something British Tabloids Won't Publish

Lawyers for Britain's royal family will go to court in France on Monday in a bid to stop further publication of topless photos of Prince William's wife, Kate. Last week, the French magazine Closer published snaps of Kate sunbathing while on vacation at a private estate. No British publication has run the photos, but an Irish tab published them Saturday, and an Italian gossip magazine plans to do the same. (AP)
